MAPPING OUR FUTURE - Ed Smith, Bruce Freeman and Margo Ward study maps outlining Didsbury's 20-year municipal development plan during an open house Oct. 26.

Didsbury's next 20 years

First draft of Municipal Development Plan released

BY JODI STYNER
Didsbury Review

The first draft of a long-awaited 20-year plan to guide the growth of Didsbury has been released and now it's time for public input.

Planners with the City of Airdrie, who were contracted to develop the Municipal Development Plan (MDP), were on hand to walk residents through the recommendations at the Town's Open House Oct. 26.

The report's Action Plan list gives top priority to residential development, economic sustainability, and municipal services and utilities.

One immediate recommendation is that the town prepare a detailed plan for future annexation and expansion that fits a desired design.

"The town traditionally hasn't done any comprehensive planning," said community planner Chris Elkey.

"There's intent to develop, but not a lot of planning with regards to what's around it - where the roads are going to go, where services will come from, how they're going to deal with open spaces, and how does that site fit in with the rest."

He said this MDP deals with all of those things.

While a plan of this kind is usually revisited every five years, Didsbury hasn't drafted a comprehensive MDP in nearly a decade, according to councillor Stan Neufeld.

"What we want to do is make this a living thing."

STAN NEUFELD
Town Councillor

"A lot of the stuff we're dealing with is dealing with decisions that were made years ago (by previous councils) and now it's difficult to manage," he said.

Neufeld said often times, a plan is put on paper and then forgotten.

"They go to all the trouble to develop a plan and then they put it on a shelf and then business goes on and they don't think to go back," he said.

"What we want to do is make this a living thing."

That means every time someone comes to town and wants to build something, council will go back to the MDP to ensure that development fits in with the town's intended design.

That design is very important, according to Elkey.

He said Didsbury's "character downtown" makes the town unique and that must be protected.

Residents agree. "I want that (bylaw) to say that every business in the downtown has to look a certain way," said Kathleen Windsor.

Elkey said right now, there are downtown design guidelines in place, but they haven't been given any "teeth".

"An area redevelopment plan would be very similar to what those guidelines are, but it gives them more weight, which means when someone comes in and wants to build, they'll have to do it a certain way," he said.

And that goes for the "character neighbourhoods" too, as the demand for infill increases.

"It needs to fit in, and not only fit in from a functional perspective, like that the roads, services and pathways make sense and they actually connect up with each other, but it needs to fit in from an overall theme, like what kind of housing is going to happen," said Elkey.

The next step is for council and residents to give feedback to the planners so they can rework the plan to best suit the needs of the community now and in the future.

"(Council) needs to hear from the taxpayers, the business owners, everybody, and in the end, they are the ones who will approve the plan based on all of that," said Elkey.

"We want to hear as much as we can throughout the whole process from council and from the community so that we can try and make sure that everyone's desires, everyone's needs, everyone's thoughts have been addressed in the plan.

Mayor Dorothy Moore said that at this point, she is only prepared to accept about half of the recommended actions put forth in the plan.

2006 Small Business Gala

BUSINESS OF THE YEAR - Murray Elliott, publisher of the Didsbury Review, accepts the Small Business of the Year award from Chamber President Scott Puttick.

People's Choice

BY JODI STYNER
Didsbury Review

In a landslide win, Mugs coffee shop took the first ever People's Choice award at the Didsbury Small Business Gala Saturday.

Mugs owner Rochelle Byiers was out of town when the award was announced, but the Chamber was able to notify her before she left.

When we called her she was really excited and surprised," said Kathleen Windsor.

The People's Choice award was a "no-holds-barred" contest that encouraged business owners to do whatever it took to rally votes.

It seems what it took was a free cup of joe.

For one hour, Byiers offered customers a free coffee in return for their vote.

Mugs garnered a total of 31 votes, 15 of which were made in that hour.

So she got at least 16 "legitimate" votes.

"What she did, enticing voters with a free coffee, was exactly what Ron Boyko wanted when he suggested the People's Choice Award in the first place - something fun for the businesses," said Windsor.

The runner-up received 15 votes out of the total 113, and altogether, 30 businesses got at least one vote.

Small biz of the year

Didsbury Review publisher Murray Elliott was surprised by the newspaper's win because it's been a real growing year for the business.

A year ago, Elliott had no intention of selling his newspaper (the Olds Albertan) and taking on the role of co-publisher of Mountain View Publishing.

The Review staff has committed themselves to continuing the paper's long-standing commitment to the community.

"We're going to try and make the best product we can every week," Elliott told those attending the Small Business Gala Saturday.

Best yet

The Chamber of Commerce is calling this 4th annual gala the best yet.

Ventriloquist Damien James was a "huge hit" with the crowd.

Some who attended both Olds' and Didsbury's small business award events were surprised that Didsbury's seemed bigger despite being a smaller town.

The Chamber would like to thank the event's major sponsor, Didsbury Liquor and Beer for their support.

EDITORIAL & OPINION

Humbled, surprised, thrilled

It's tough to describe what one feels when the business they operate has been selected as Small Business of the Year by the Didsbury & District Chamber of Commerce. The Didsbury Review had the honour to receive this award, presented at the Small Business Gala, Oct. 28.

In my mind it seemed unusual in the first place to be nominated. The Review has undergone significant changes in the last year. It's been a challenge to say the least. Nearly two years ago the Review's beloved publisher Gene Hartmann, and a number of publishers in Mountain View County, jointly placed their papers on the sale block. Ironically, I (being the Olds Albertan and Innisfail Province) refused to join in with the sale.

To make a long story short, I made a deal with Great West newspapers, based out of St. Albert, which purchased all the papers in the area. My decision to be a part of the deal was incumbent on remaining a shareholder in a new publishing group, namely Mountain View Publishing, under which the Review is a valuable part. My partners in this relatively new venture are longtime Sundre Round Up owners Ray and Joanne Lachambre.

Didsbury has had a long history with community newspapers starting in 1903 with the Didsbury Pioneer. The paper, like the town, changed and evolved and has had great leadership along the way including Miller McCoy, and the man who I had the privilege to know and have grown to respect immensely over the years, Gene Hartmann.

Gene and his family, along with the great employees who have guided the Review over the years, left their own mark on the paper. Regrettably, Gene was looking for new challenges and we were forced to continue on without him. We've had a few staff changes, but have retained and acquired outstanding people to lead the Review into a new chapter. The Hartmann family and their predecessors are as responsible for the Review receiving this honour, as anyone.

Our commitment to the community remains unchanged. Our location remains the same. We still have a full-service print shop offering great service at competitive prices. The paper switched from paid to free and has undergone a major facelift. We support local.

Thank-you Kathleen Windsor for the nomination, president Scott Puttick, and the other members of the Didsbury Chamber for your time and effort to help make the evening such a nice event, and to the other nominees (A Gallery of Floors, Checker Auto Parts, Mountain View Credit Union and Unique Stained Glass Works), Mugs, this year's recipient of the People's Choice Award, and other small business owners who make Didsbury such a great town. It's an honour indeed.

YOUR LETTERS

A different perspective

I had the opportunity to speak to you on Oct. 23. At that time, I expressed concern over the type of letters to the editor you were printing in this paper. I was happy to see that they were much less vicious the following week. People could have just become less vindictive or perhaps you took a closer look at what you were printing and screened out the ones who were ranting.

The people of Didsbury have made few published comments and rightfully so. If you believe everything in the papers you are shocked and sickened.

If you have any good thoughts about the young men and their situation, you may be afraid to open your mouth for fear of retaliation.

The RCMP was quoted in the paper earlier asking that no one resort to vigilantism. I hope that request will be honoured by everyone, including those writing to the paper.

These young men have friends and family who are affected by what people do and say. Unless you were in that backyard you cannot know all the facts, so please don't address them in such a public forum.

Thank you,

Arlene Ross

PONDERINGS OF THE HEART

A hand up

BY MARGARET FRADLEY
For the Didsbury Review

Some weeks ago a man who had no place to sleep was sleeping on the street when maliciously he was set on fire. He was badly burned, he had nowhere to live, was now recovering in hospital and now owned nothing.

As I listened to this, I knew in my heart, immediately, that someone would show up to help. People are so good in a time of need.

The very next night, on the news, people had come forward, offering a place to live, clothing and other things the man needed. The response was overwhelming; the man was overcome, but said he wanted to work and did not feel comfortable accepting a "handout", to which someone responded, "this is not a 'hand-out', it is a 'hand up'."

There are times in our lives when we all need a "hand up" - a word of encouragement, a note, phone call, or just someone showing they care.

Are we sensitive to those who, even today, might just need that "hand up"? Let us not pass up any opportunity to reach out.

Ground level petitioning

I've had a few people now express feelings of annoyance that the horrific torture and death of "Daisy Duke" seems to have received more publicity than that of a reported child abuse case.

Horrible crimes happen daily to all species of animals as well as humans of all ages. I strongly believe, the current laws in our legislation are slack in regards to ALL cases of abuse. What you need to realize is that you cannot change legislation in regards to all forms of abuse in one single petition. We need to start at the ground level and work our way up and unfortunately, "ground level" seems to be animal abuse.

Statistics show time and time again, the very prevalent link between animal abusers, infant/ child abusers, spouse abusers, murderers and serial killers.

To those of you who are so passionate about having new laws passed into legislation in regards to stiffer penalties for child and spousal abusers as well as murderers and serial killers, you must stand up for what you believe in. If there are ever to be positive changes made to this society we currently live in, people need to actively speak up and take part in persuading some of our leaders to make some major changes to our legislation. I challenge you to do your research and in turn, start a legal petition addressed to the House of Commons which specifically addresses which changes you would like implemented. I would like to be the first to sign it and would play a very strong role in the circulation of this petition across Canada.

I stood up for what I believe in with all that I am, countless, amazing individuals across Canada have stood beside me. It's time you stood up as well. Together we can make a difference.

At the kitchen table

BY NOREEN OLSON
For the Didsbury Review

Halloween or "All Hallows Eve," was first celebrated by the ancient Celts in Ireland in the fifth century B.C. October 31 was then the official end of summer and on that night the Celtic people let all their hearth fires die so that their huts would be cold and uninviting to wandering spirits. Then they gathered outside the village where a Druid priest had built a huge bonfire to both honour the sun god for the harvest and to frighten away lurking spirits.

The Celts believed that on October 31 everyone who had died in the previous year came back to choose the body of a person or animal that they would inhabit for the next twelve months before they passed peacefully into the afterlife. Because no one wanted to be possessed by a roving soul, family members scared away the spirits by dressing up as demons, witches and goblins. They paraded noisily through the empty houses and banged pots and pans and yelled and chanted their way to the bonfire outside town. Woe betide the poor soul who through illness, nerves or mannerism appeared to be already possessed, he or she might well be tossed on the fire as a warning to other spirits looking for a host.

The Romans adopted the Celtic Halloween customs but in A.D. 61 they outlawed human sacrifice and as time went on people ceased to believe in spirit possession and Halloween became more and more just a time for dressing up and having a costumed festival. Irish immigrants who fled the potato famine of the 1840s brought Halloween costumes and mischief to America but Halloween didn't arrive in Western Canada until after the first World War and the first recorded Halloween pranks in Calgary included pulling wooden planks out of the sidewalk and tipping over outhouses.

Halloween may have taken its time to arrive in Canada but according to the Canadian Book of Lists Canada has been recording mysterious phenomena since the beginning of our history. Since the time of Samuel de Champlain anthropologists, police and government officials have testified that several First Nations tribes have the ability to set large wigwags shaking and vibrating without physical contact. In 1663 the Great Quebec earthquake was accurately predicted by an Indian girl who told church officials that a voice had told her there would be an earthquake in three days at five in the afternoon.

On Oct. 15, 1785 a figure who looked exactly like John Wynyard walked through the room of his brother, George Wynyard of Sydney N.S. and vanished. John was dying in India at that very moment. The first picture of the British Columbia Legislature was taken on January 13 1865. One member, Charles Good, was at home seriously ill at the time but his face, a bit hazy, appears in the space he would have occupied. Tom Thomson of the Group of Seven painters, is often seen paddling his canoe at Algonquin Park where he was found dead in 1917, and the house in Toronto occupied from 1859 to 1861 by William Lyon MacKenzie, who died there, reports footfalls and the apparition of a small, bald-headed man.

For ghosts a little closer to home try Heritage Park, The Deane House and the Planetarium. I would love to hear about some in Didsbury. I would like to hear about them, I don't want to actually see them!

Mountain View Regional Waste Management Commission Landfill

Opening to the Public

The Board of Directors of the Mountain View Regional Waste Management Commission is pleased to announce that the MVRWMC Landfill (Didsbury) will open for public use on November 30, 2006.

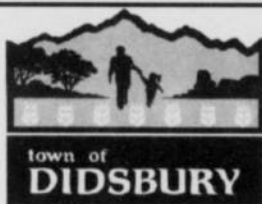

The Landfill site will be open to the public from 8:00 am to 4:30 pm. Thursday, Friday and Saturday of each week.

Area residents are invited to bring their solid waste to the Mountain View Regional Waste Landfill located approximately 2 miles northeast from the Town of Didsbury.

The Mountain View Regional Waste Management Commission will permanently close the Carstairs Waste Transfer Site. The final day of operation will be Saturday, November 24, 2006 from 9:00 am to 4:00 p.m.

The Board of Directors of the MVRWMC has taken this action with due consideration after reviewing the declining resident usage at Carstairs site.

Residents currently using the Carstairs site are asked to bring their solid waste to the Mountain View Regional Waste Landfill.

P2P hires first-ever coordinator

BY JODI STYNER
Didsbury Review

The Prairies to Peaks Tourism Association has hired its first-ever office manager/tourism coordinator to help the organization run more smoothly.

Lisa Land was chosen for the position because of her strong experience and enthusiasm, according to P2P chair Mel Crothers.

"During the selection interview, not only did she display those leadership characteristics we were looking for, she bubbled with enthusiasm coupled with a very high sense of professionalism," said Crothers.

"She has a lot of current experience working with smaller municipalities and associated volunteer organizations, and those skills are very hard to find."

Land was born in Olds, but later moved to Calgary, so she said her return to the area is a kind of "coming home".

"It's changed so much since I've been here, so I'm getting my feet wet again I guess," said Land.

Her immediate goal is to get to know the area a bit more.

She will work to achieve the goals P2P has set up for itself, including increasing membership, ensuring that members are getting a good value for their dollar, and discovering what other unique opportunities there are in the county to bring to the membership.

Land said what she likes about P2P is that it offers a partnership and a common voice for people who have like interests.

"It's awesome because you get so much further ahead than trying to do it out on your own," said Land.

Until now, P2P has been run solely by volunteers who all have other commitments, so while they're generating great ideas it can sometimes take time to bring them to fruition.

Land feels by creating this new position, P2P will be able to operate more smoothly.

"When you have a central person and that's all they're concentrating on, then you're able to get some of the activities done in a more efficient manner," she said.

"Just to have someone that everyone can refer to, and you have a common message going out."

Crothers is confident Land is the right person for the job.

"We're absolutely delighted to have Lisa join our team and take on this important leadership role," he said.

"We're convinced our membership will be thrilled with Lisa and we're certain she will be a wonderful fit for this organization as we continue to move ahead."

Land will start work with the organization on Nov. 20 in P2P's new office at the Town of Didsbury Administration building.

Apple a Day

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month. The statistics are that one in every nine women in Canada will develop breast cancer and one in every twenty-seven women that are diagnosed will die from the disease. Those numbers are a bit staggering if you do just a little mathematics. In my graduation class alone seven of the young ladies I graduated with will be diagnosed with breast cancer and at least one of them will die—and that one already has, three years ago.

With these high numbers, what can women do to help themselves? Obviously every woman needs to perform regular breast self-exams. Eat healthy; skip the bag of potato chips or the chocolate bar and reach for fresh veggies and dip. Quit smoking; smoking causes heart disease, oral cancer and increases your odds of developing breast cancer. Use alcohol in moderation; drinking just two alcoholic beverages a day can increase your risk of breast cancer by 30%. Have yearly or biyearly mammograms, depending on your family history. And, exercise needs to be on your list of things to do. According to Anne McTiernan of the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center, overweight + sedentary = more hormones = breast cancer.

So, get moving. Women with a high body mass index (BMI) and low activity levels have higher hormonal levels than women with a low BMI. Inactive women have higher hormonal levels than active women. You don't have to be an athlete, you just need to do some form of physical activity 3 to 4 times a week to reduce your risk. If you have been diagnosed with breast cancer, exercise is now just as important as it was before. Start back at your regular exercise routine as soon as you get the OK from your doctor. Start slow and pay particular attention to the affected shoulder and arm area. Begin with no resistance and work your way up to easy resistance bands, challenging resistance bands, then resistance machines. If you can not repeat the exercise 10 times, lower your resistance. Your exercise routine will have to be modified until full range of motion returns and may vary from day-to-day depending on your chemotherapy and/or radiation treatments, fatigue, nausea, and stiffness of the affected area; you may even have to miss a workout if necessary.

Benefits during and following cancer treatment are enhanced functional capacity, greater muscle strength, increased flexibility, increased range of motion of the affected shoulder, decrease of weight gain associated with chemotherapy, decreased fatigue associated with chemotherapy and radiation therapy, less incidence of nausea during chemotherapy, improved sleep patterns, enhanced psychological well-being, and improved quality of life. Resistance and flexibility exercises are very important.

Remember FIT, frequency – 3 to 4 times per week, intensity – 75% of your maximum heart rate, timing – minimum of 25 minutes for a cardiovascular workout. Women who are physically active after breast cancer treatments have a 30% higher survival rate than their inactive peers.

Kidsbury daycare celebrates 20 years

BY JODI STYNER
Didsbury Review

MJ Paul has helped raise over 1,000 Didsbury kids during her 20-year tenure as the owner of Kidsbury Daycare and she loves it as much today as the day she opened her doors.

She's watched generations of kids grow up and says being able to talk to them now on the same level is interesting.

"It's like, holy cow, they're adults," she said.

"That's pretty amazing."

Some of those "adults" have moved up the ranks from one of MJ's "kids", to co-workers, taking care of a new generation of babies.

And her own family grew up there too.

"I raised my three grandchildren here, my two daughters were raised here and then my daughters had children and I had them here, so we saw three generations here," said Paul.

"That's pretty neat."

When she first started Kidsbury, her daughter Stacy was five, and now in her 20th anniversary year, Stacy's own daughter is five.

Over the years, Paul said a lot has changed, but it's still the most rewarding job in the world.

When she and her then husband George first moved to Didsbury, they looked at various business ventures, but George encouraged her to pursue what she loved.

"I owe a lot of thanks to my ex-husband George," she said.

"He stood beside me when we moved out here and he's still very supportive of me and my daughters."

Her girls deserve a lot of thanks too, says Paul.

"I'd come to work sometimes from 6 a.m.-6 p.m. Monday to Friday, so I missed a lot of stuff," she said.

Now her oldest daughter is the same age Paul was when Kidsbury first opened.

She told her mom, "I can't see myself opening up a daycare now and you did it and you had small kids."

Paul said her measure of success is unique.

"The story is if you've made it 10 years in a business, you're considered a success," she said.

"I consider myself a success for every child who comes through here and is still staying out of trouble."

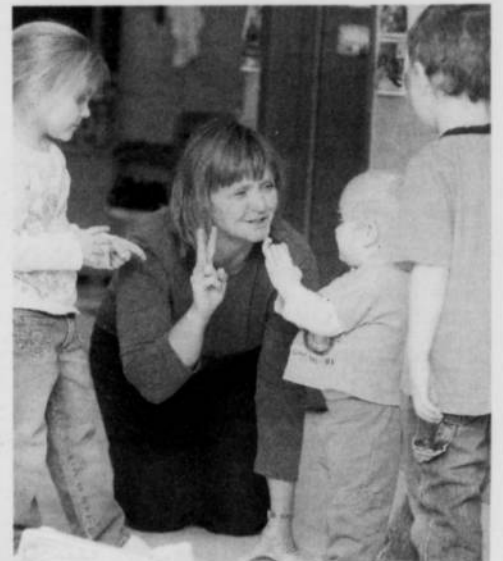

Paul's biggest challenge has always been staffing.

"The staff wages are terrible and you can't ask parents to give more to the staff," she said.

But the staff she's had have been "incredible".

Looking back at two decades of childcare in Didsbury, Paul said what links it all together is the "wonderful community."

"There have been far more love and kisses and successes that far outnumber the bad days," she said.

RCMP BRIEFS

Gun amnesty a success

As Alberta's month-long gun amnesty comes to an end today, Didsbury RCMP Cpl. Kevin Fischer said locally the initiative was a big success.

Over 20 firearms, ammunition and replicas were turned over to the local detachment during the month of October.

Those weapons and ammunition will now be cut up and destroyed.

Cpl. Fischer said that although October was the official amnesty month, people are still encouraged to hand in firearms that they no longer want.

Mischief at Masterfeeds

During the evening of Oct. 14, in the early morning hours of Oct. 15, unknown suspects entered the Masterfeeds Mill in Didsbury.

The suspects had entered the building, driven around in the forklifts causing damage to the feed products and also turned on machines that pumped molasses into the streets of Didsbury.

Damage is estimated at $10,000.

Police are seeking any information that may assist in locating suspects for this investigation. Anyone with information please contact Didsbury RCMP at 335-3382.

Local wrestler takes to the ring

BY JODI STYNER
Didsbury Review

From the time he learned how to work a remote control, Didsbury's Adam Larson has been fascinated with the world of wrestling.

When he was 12 years old, Larson saw an ad on TV for Ted Hart's pro wrestling school in Calgary and he told his mom and dad he just had to go.

"We went out there for a month because that's all we could afford and I've just loved it ever since," he said.

Being so young and small, Larson got tossed around a lot by bigger guys, but that didn't deter him.

"It's different than the wrestling business, what you see on TV and stuff than what it's really like backstage or if you come to the wrestling schools," he said.

"They're not going to be jerks to you. Everybody's really nice and supportive."

With school and work responsibilities, wrestling got put on the back burner for a few years, but at 18, Larson made a comeback in his debut Stampede Wrestling matchup at the Ogden Legion in Calgary.

"A lot of people's first matchup doesn't go very well, but mine was pretty good," he remembers.

Now Larson is preparing for what may be the biggest event in his wrestling career to date – a match against his trainer Ravenous Randy in front of a hometown crowd.

Didsbury will host Stampede Wrestling Nov. 3 at the MPR.

"I think my chances are fairly good," he said.

"And it's my hometown, so all my friends and family are going to be out there. I'll have the hometown advantage."

Another advantage to wrestling his trainer is that he already knows most of his moves.

Unfortunately that works both ways.

Larson is famous for his finishing move called "carrot juice".

"It's off the top rope, a 180 and then a fun flip and then a 360 barrel thing. So it's a big floppy thing," he said.

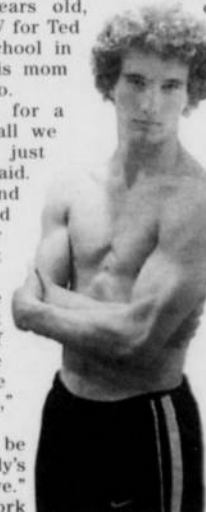

The move's title comes from the nickname given to Larson by his fellow wrestlers. They got one look at his big orange hair and started calling him carrot, and it stuck.

Despite the ring-worth nickname, Larson competes under the name "Evan Adams" (Evan is his middle name).

Win or lose, after the Nov. 3 match is over, Larson said he plans to go as far as he can with his wrestling.

"I'm not expecting to get into the WWE or anything too high, but I'd love to do this for the rest of my life," he said.

"It's all I've ever wanted to do and I'm finally actually pursuing my dream."

GRAND OPENING — Gord Fulton of Victoria's Flowers serves customers in his new location which he recently restored.

Back to our roots

BY JODI STYNER
Didsbury Review

When Gord Fulton moved his flower shop into the old J.V. Berscht building on Main Street, he made it his mission to bring the building's dying history back to life.

As he began chipping away at the modern surfaces, exposing the original textures, a rich story was uncovered; a story of a man who helped build this town.

Claiming his lot with just a canvas tent and saddlery, J.V. Berscht set out as Didsbury's first clothier and one of three original businessmen in town.

But just as things got rolling, a fire swept through the downtown in the early hours of New Year's Day 1914 and everything he'd built up was left in ashes.

Rather than packing up what little was left and moving on, Berscht got to work rebuilding.

Then, nearing the Depression years, a second fire, which started in the hardware store next door, brought the building to its knees once again.

Again, he rebuilt. It's this tenacity and integrity that Fulton wanted to honour through his restoration project.

"I think as a business community, it's our responsibility to keep alive that part of our history that tells us who we came from, it tells us of the perseverance of those people who came to this country, sat in the snow, did not have it easy and made it," he said.

Planners working on a 20-year development plan for Didsbury agree with Fulton's philosophy.

They've recommended that a bylaw be implemented requiring all downtown businesses reflect the same "character" design.

"The plan itself could actually require a redevelopment levy for everybody downtown, so the town can start collecting money and doing its own projects to maintain and enhance," suggested community planner Chris Elkey.

For Fulton, the effort was worth every dollar and minute spent.

Since reopening Victoria's Flowers recently, some of the few residents who were a part of the original business have come in to reflect on the past.

One woman who worked for Berscht recalled her boss telling the staff they all had to wear the wigs he was selling, to promote the product. One night at the bar, the woman's friend was dancing around, parading a wig and laughing when he came face to face with Mr. Berscht.

"She heard about it the next day at work," said Fulton. "That's classic."

Another gentleman recalled Mr. Berscht hiring a pretty young girl to model his blue jeans in the early '50s when blue jeans were still a faux pas.

"He got the tightest pair of jeans on this girl and she wore them, they looked good, and sales went through the roof," said Fulton.

"That was very smart business and way ahead of his time considering jeans were a no-no."

This kind of reflection is exactly what Fulton was hoping would come out of the months of hard work he put into the building.

"I wanted people to say, 'Wow, that's neat' and neat not just because it's something different, but because it takes them back," he said.

Since taking possession in June, Fulton, his sister and 14-year-old son worked up to 16 hour days running the business out of the old shop and working nights to fix up the new one.

Chiselling away at cement to expose the original red brick was a daunting task and there were days the crew thought it was never going to be done.

"My knuckles were just raw from chipping away with a hammer and chisel," said Fulton.

"Even my 10-year-old daughter was in here shovelling cement to get it out of here."

After that was done, they took out the lino and re-did the hardwood floors, stripped the paint off the fireplace to show the old brick, putting in the tin ceiling and adding in glass bricks in the front.

"There was a lot of love and a lot of pride that went into the work when these buildings were made," said Fulton.

But it's about more than the physical look of the place; it's about a feeling it provides the customers.

Fulton said nothing gives him more pride than when people come in and say "it feels good in here."

"That's what the old stores were like. It was part of the community, it wasn't rush, rush, rush," he said.

"That's what I wanted to recreate; let's take it down a notch."

As more and more old buildings are left to crumble, or torn down and replaced by more modern versions, Fulton said a piece of yesterday is lost and he felt he owed it to pioneers like Berscht to buck the trend.

"To walk across this flooring, to hear the creaks and see the differences in the colour, there's something to be said for that," said Fulton.

"I hope I look this good when I'm as old as this building."

EXPOSED — The name of the building's original proprietor had been boarded up and has now been brought back to the forefront.

FIRESIDE — Gord Fulton looks the part sitting by his newly restored fireplace with his dog Druid.

Novice Ramblers hit the ice

This year's Didsbury Novice Ramblers are made up of a group of 19 enthusiastic 7 and 8-year-old hockey players. The majority of the team have recently moved up from Tyke. We have Jeremy Gerber and James Whidden as the 2 veteran Novice players. The rookie Novices include Graysen Cameron, Emma Dodyk, Karson Dussault, Ian Griffiths, Terrance Hunt, Jeremy Jean, Brock Krebs, Caleb Krebs, Dawson Phillips, Boedy Sheilds, Caden Switzer, Spencer Timmins, Gina Tsiras, Damian Vickers-May, Mitchell Visser, Trey Wallace and Ethan Williams.

The Novice team is lead by a group of co-coaches: Dan Visser, Al Sheilds, Pam Cameron and Jason Switzer. These coaches have all worked together on the ice before. They have a great rapport with the players and are all there to have fun with the kids and help them develop their hockey skills. Cindy Jean keeps everyone organized as team manager. There are many other parents that help these players both on and off the ice.

The Novice Ramblers had their first real exhibition game last Saturday against Airdrie. Graysen Cameron was kept busy in net. He made some incredible saves. Despite the relentless efforts of the whole team they lost to Airdrie.

This team has a fairly steep learning curve ahead of them. This is the year that the players learn more about rules such as "offside" and "icing." Some of the less experienced hockey parents are learning, too.

The players are looking forward to the season ahead. They have one tournament scheduled for November 18th and 19th in Eckville and hope to enter in a few more throughout the season to balance out their 2 & 27 league schedule.

ALTALINK MANAGEMENT LTD.-APPLICATION NO. 1478550 EPCOR TRANSMISSION INC.-APPLICATION NO. 1479163 500 KV TRANSMISSION SYSTEM REINFORCEMENT EDMONTON - CALGARY AREA

Take Notice that the schedule set out in the Notice of Hearing issued by the Alberta Energy and Utilities Board (EUB/Board) on September 22, 2006, has been cancelled, and the hearing originally scheduled for December 11, 2006, at Capri Centre, Red Deer, Alberta, has been adjourned. Further Take Notice that the Board has scheduled a pre-hearing meeting at the Capri Centre, Red Deer, Alberta, commencing on November 2, 2006, at 9:00 a.m. The purpose of the pre-hearing meeting is to consider:

- the establishment of a list of issues for the hearing of these applications,
- the parameters by which standing will be granted to potential interveners,
- the creation of a schedule that is in keeping with the need established for the 500 kV transmission line and the ability of the interveners to properly participate, and
- other matters that may be raised.

Nature of AltaLink's Application to the EUB

In support of its proposal, AltaLink has prepared and submitted the following documents:

- Application No. 1478550 to the EUB, pursuant to Sections 14, 15, 17, and 18 of the Hydro and Electric Energy Act;
 - Application No. 001-00223682 to Alberta Environment (AENV), pursuant to Sections 50 and 66 of the Environmental Protection and Enhancement Act; and
 - Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA) report to AENV (the EIA report forms part of the application to the EUB)
- AltaLink's applications include the following major system additions and modifications:
- construct and operate about 240 kilometers (km) of new single-circuit 500 kV transmission line from existing Genesee Substation E330P to the Lochend area north of Calgary;
 - construct and operate about 90 km of new double-circuit 500 kV transmission line with one circuit strung from the Lochend area to the existing Langdon Substation 102S;
 - construction of about 911 towers, utilization of 3 existing industrial construction yards, and access to tower locations via existing right-of-way; and
 - alter the existing Langdon Substation 102S to accommodate the new 500 kV transmission line.

Nature of EPCOR's Application to the EUB

EPCOR's application to the EUB is to alter the existing Genesee Substation E330P to accommodate the new 500 kV transmission line. All the applied-for alterations will take place within the boundaries of the existing substation.

To Intervene at the Pre-Hearing Meeting

While formal submissions are not necessary in advance of the Pre-Hearing, parties wishing to participate at the pre-hearing meeting must register their intention to participate no later than October 26, 2006, by sending a letter of intervention indicating:

- complete name and mailing address,
 - electronic mail and/or fax number if available,
 - location of land (legal land subdivision) and approximate distance to proposed transmission line, and
 - a brief summary indicating how you are directly and adversely affected by the proposed transmission line.
- Those parties choosing to make a submission are reminded that the Board will not be considering the merits of the applications nor any evidence related thereto at this time but only those matters identified above along with any other procedural matters that the parties wish placed on the agenda.

The EUB would appreciate receiving the letters of intervention in electronic format (computer files) if possible, but recognizes that some parties may not have the ability to do so, in which case they should send one copy to the attention of Mr. S. Lota at the above address. Send the electronic file of your letter of intervention to eub.uti@gov.ab.ca.

Note that in accordance with Section 12 of the Alberta Energy and Utilities Board Rules of Practice, all documents filed in respect of this proceeding must be placed on the public record unless otherwise ordered by the Board.

Issued at Calgary, Alberta, on October 18, 2006.

PUBLIC NOTICE TAYLOR PROCESSING INC. ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AND ENHANCEMENT ACT NOTICE OF APPLICATION NEW PIPELINE PROJECT

In accordance with the Environmental Protection and Enhancement Act, Taylor Processing Inc. (Taylor) has applied to Alberta Environment for an approval to construct the Harmattan to Cochrane Delivery Pipeline. Taylor is applying to Alberta Environment to construct approximately 67.3 km of 610 mm O.D. pipeline in Townships 26 to 31, Ranges 4 and 5 W5M. The proposed delivery pipeline will transport rich sweet natural gas from the TransCanada System to the Harmattan Plant located at 15-27-31-4 W5M to utilize spare capacity at the Plant to process the sweet natural gas stream to remove the natural gas liquids (consisting of ethane, propane, butane and condensate). The proposed pipeline will then deliver the fully processed natural gas downstream of the Cochrane Gas Plant located at 9-16-26-4 W5M. The proposed pipelines will be in common trench from 15-27-31-4 W5M to 6-24-31-5 W5M. The permanent right-of-way width will be 10 m with 20 m of temporary workspace and additional temporary workspace taken as required. Construction is scheduled to commence in June / July of 2007.

Pursuant to section 72 of the Environmental Protection and Enhancement Act, any person who is directly affected by this operation may submit a written statement of concern regarding this application. Failure to file a statement of concern may affect the right to file a notice of objection (on appeal) with the Environmental Appeal Board. Such a statement of concern must be submitted to:

Director of Southern Region
Alberta Environment
Regulatory Approvals Center
Main Floor, 9820 - 106 Street
Edmonton, Alberta T5K 2J6

within 30 days of the date of this notice. Please quote Application No. 001-235152 when submitting a statement of concern.

Submissions related to compensation for land uses are beyond the jurisdiction of Alberta Environment.

Copies of the approval application can be obtained from:

Your letters Demand a change

The petition of Disbury's dog has reached my state, Nevada, USA.

I am so saddened by this horrific news of Didsbury's dog. She was your dog, the town's dog. She is relying on you to make changes in the judicial system and laws.

It is up to you, the town's people to see to it that proper and corrective action be taken against the two men.

At 17 and 19, they are men. They are certainly olds enough to smoke, and I am sure they have drunk alcohol already, probably drugs too. They are old enough for stiff penalty since they're old enough to kill.

North America is a crime scene. Demand laws be changed and justice be harsh and for the community to react and do something. As a voice you can be at that court and be heard in numbers. The court cannot ignore you. This animal, Daisy I believe her name, was a precious puppy at one time.

She dies courageously as a teenager dog.

Do not allow her horrific death to be passed down to those who killed her. It will not be the last time these men kill.

Daisy deserved to live and I wish so much that I could be at that hearing.

How dare these men do this and to have all of us who have seen it, heard it, read it be affected with horror. Our horror was nothing compared to Daisy's.

Speak for her!

Nancy D. Lemburg
 Gartnerville, Nevada.

Dear Ms. Wiens

In response to your letter to the editor I must say that I disagree. Cruelty to children vs. cruelty to animals. Does two wrongs make a right? You speak about the people ignoring the plight of the abused children; it is definitely a crime against humanity, a crime against God. But are not animals God's creatures as well? Who will raise a voice for them? Hasn't it been identified that abusing animals leads to abusing humans or worse? When we are righteously defending the children, just think of the feelings, thoughts, and pain had these two "humans" dragged the innocent dog past the schools in the daytime. The question is religious beliefs vs. civil law re. abortion. Then we all know what to do; change the laws. get out and vote!

Elks news

Elks Provincial President Visits by Don Neal.

The Didsbury Elks were honoured with the visit of Alberta Elks Association

Provincial President Brother Duane Felt recently.

President Felt extended greetings from the Provincial and the Grand Lodge Executives along with the following statement outlining the efforts of our Elks and Royal Purple in Didsbury.

"You have been a major contributor to the community bus, the tennis courts, the hospital, swimming pool and minor sports. Your hall is used by a number of community organizations namely the Cadets, 4H, Didsbury Theatre, to mention a few.

Your campground north of town is something to be proud of.

Over the past five years the Didsbury Elks have donated over $6,660 to our national charity, The Elks and Royal Purple Fund for Children, and the Royal Purple have donated over $4,500. You have accessed the fund for over $3,500 for various community assistance programs. You have donated $15,000 to the Alberta Elks Foundation, thousands of dollars to The Institute for Stuttering Treatment and Research (ISTAR) and you have donated $90,000 to community projects and local sponsorships. The Didsbury Elks have also donated over $14,000 in volunteer hours. It is this commitment that makes this order what it is today"

Our next Meeting is October 12, 2006. Please note our Meetings are open to anyone interested in joining the Elks.

LI'L DRUMMER BOY – Ben Thomas, 12, recently grabbed the title of top grade one percussionist in Alberta.

Carla Victor/Olds Albertan

Bang on the drum all day

Local boy drums his way to the top

BY JODI STYNER
Didsbury Review

In a "miracle" win, a 12-year-old Didsbury boy has taken the title of top Grade 1 percussionist in the province.

"It's quite a miracle. I can't think of a time anybody else has won this high an award from here," said Lucianne Trick, of Top Note Music School where Ben Thomas takes private lessons.

"I just didn't like blowing and I like being loud."

BEN THOMAS Drummer

Ben Thomas, a Grade 7 student, started playing drums in the school band when he was in Grade 5.

Last year he started lessons with Top Note and the Royal Conservatory of Music (RCM) at Mount Royal College in Calgary.

Ben proved to be at the head of the class during this year's annual RCM examinations, scoring higher than any other Grade 1 percussionist.

He said learning to play drums was sometimes difficult, especially when the foot pedal was introduced and he had to concentrate on three things at once.

Asked why he chose drums over other instruments, Ben said simply, "I just didn't like blowing and I like being loud."

Luckily his parents didn't quash that dream.

"It doesn't bother us at all," said Ben's mom Pam.

"We can shut his bedroom door and still hear it in the background."

Ben plans to continue his drumming career and hopes to join the high school band down the road.

Doug takes great comfort in knowing how to avoid Carbon Monoxide poisoning

As an ATCO Gas employee and volunteer firefighter, Doug knows that what you can't smell can hurt you. Carbon monoxide is odourless, toxic and life threatening. Doug is committed to your safety, whether he's on the job or volunteering.

Doug says:

- Your first line of defense is to perform an annual inspection of all your natural gas appliances, including your furnace.
- Your second is to install a Carbon Monoxide detector today.
- And at all times, keep flues and vents free of dust and debris.

OBITUARIES

TIGHE - STEWART WILLIAM

It is with deep sorrow that we announce the passing of a loving husband and devoted father, Stewart William Tighe at the Olds Hospital on Sunday, October 22, 2006 at the age of 82 years. Stewart is survived by his loving wife Shirley of 19 years; 2 sons, Bill (Diane) of Calgary and Garry (Claire) of Calgary; one daughter, Colleen (Bruce) Dowell of Carstairs; 3 step-daughters, Donna Wood and friend Don of Camrose, Maxine (Hugh) Godwin of Caroline and Laurie Ryan of Olds; 16 grandchildren and 2 great grandchildren; 2 sisters, Lillian (Allan) Lieth of Vauxhall and Agnes Dumontier of Didsbury and one brother Ken (Eileen) of Red Deer, as well as many nieces, nephews and friends. Stewart was predeceased by his first wife Lydia in 1986, parents Garnet and Ethel, and sister Etta Hamper. Stewart was an avid hockey fan, cribbage and pool player. He was a member of the Didsbury Lions Club for many years and an active member of the Didsbury Elks # 514. One of his favourite pastimes was helping build the Elks campground at Cipperleys Pond. He was also an installer of Life Line units for many years in Didsbury, until his failing health prevented him from being involved. Stewart was very proud of his family and especially all his grandchildren. A Celebration of Stewart's life was held at Zion Evangelical Missionary Church, Hwy 582 & 20th Ave., Didsbury, AB on Friday, October 27, 2006 at 1:00 pm. In lieu of flowers, a donation in memory of Stewart may be made to the Elks & Royal Purple Fund for Children, c/o Didsbury Elks #514, Box 147 Didsbury, AB T0M 0W0 or a charity of choice.

MEMORIAL

DICK

Emma Dick who passed away
Nov 3, 1956.

Beloved Mother and Grandmother.

They say time heals all sorrow,

And helps us to forget, But time so far has only proved,

How much we miss her yet.

God gave us strength to take it,

And courage to heart the blow.

But what it meant to lose her,

No one will ever know.

Sadly missed by

Doreen, Bob, Calvin, Melvin

and Families

THANK YOU

We wish to thank everyone for all of the support we received during Hilda's illness and at the time of her passing.

Thank you to all who sent cards, food, flowers, memorial donations and the visits.

Thanks to everyone who attended the service, it was greatly appreciated. Special thanks to Dr. Smit and all the Doctors and staff at the Didsbury Hospital, Pastor Mohns, Diann at Personal Alternative Funeral Services and the special friends who were always there. Words can never express our gratitude - God bless you all.
